He didn't turn up for a week or so, so I emailed to check and he said he'd forgotten, then arranged to come again the following day. He didn't turn up then either and offered to come the day after that between 11-1. At just before 1 he messaged to say he was caught on another job so would be there between 2-3 instead, which I said was fine. I waited until 5pm with still no arrival or communication, and then text him with no response until the next day, then offering to come around, which I declined.

Nothing wrong with him personally when he turned up as he was polite enough, just really rubbish communication and reliability

I've been on Fiverr for many years now and have seen fake reviews be used by many sellers. Seeing this has helped me determine whether or not purchasing fake reviews is a good idea for sellers looking to get their gigs seen by more buyers.

In this article, you will learn:

Is There a Way to Fake Fiverr Reviews?

Is There a Way to Fake Fiverr Reviews?

So, while fake reviews aren't from bots, fake accounts, etc. they are not organic or genuine. Since this is the case, they can be classified as being fake.

It's safe to assume that reviews are not fake on most gigs. Of course, some reviews are fake on some gigs, but Fiverr is not overrun with sellers purchasing fake reviews to inflate their review count.

Yes, some sellers purchase a large number of fake reviews for their gigs. However, these sellers rarely survive for long on the platform. Keep this in mind as you you browse and look at different gigs.
