The marriage was short-lived.

Walters then took his proposition to the Atlantic Club Casino Hotel, then known as the Golden Nugget, which was accepted.

Walters won $3.

[1]

Walters was sentenced to 5 years in prison and fined $10 million.

Golfer Phil Mickelson "was also mentioned during the trial as someone who had traded in Dean Foods shares and once owed nearly $2 million in gambling debts to" Walters.

Personal life [edit]

He claims to have made over $400,000 on one hole and once as much as $1 million in one round, although he admitted to losing that same amount at blackjack later that night.

Can you trust paid reviews on TikTok? Here's a look at how to tell if reviews are honest.

Whether it's for makeup, fashion, or anything in between, you have probably seen reviews for new and fun products all over your TikTok For You Page.

But did you know that influencers are often paid by the companies selling these products to review them? So how can you be sure that these reviews are even honest?

How Do Paid TikTok Reviews Work?

There may be some requirements for the video, such as how long it should be, key words or features to highlight, or how to include information on where to buy the product.

Paid reviews are just one thing that make TikTok one of the best social media platforms for businesses.

Many big influencers on TikTok have addressed their standards when they agree to do reviews on social media for payment. These can include not doing reviews for products that they don't like or always being honest in reviews, even if it causes them to lose a business relationship.

Check out the reviewer's profile for a video addressing their standards. If
