Leaving Third-Party Seller Feedback

After you order a seller fulfilled item, you can leave comments, feedback, and ratings to let other customers know about your experience. You have 90 days from the date of your order to provide this information.

When you leave feedback about a seller, ensure that it's about your buying experience. Here are some helpful pointers:

How satisfied were you with your order packing and delivery?

If you contacted the seller, did you get good customer service and prompt resolution?

Promotional content: This includes anything of a promotional nature, such as comments about or links to other merchants or websites.

Objectionable Content (as defined under Conditions of Use): Use helpful and appropriate language when accessing our website.

Note: Only customers who have purchased a product from a seller through Amazon can leave comments, feedback and ratings about the seller.

What is a unit in sports betting?

One unit is usually equal to one percent of a bankroll, though it's not the same for everyone.

For example, if your bankroll is $1,000, one unit would be $10 or 1%.

If you're a serious bettor, it's rarely a good idea to make a bet with more than five units unless you know something everyone else doesn't.

Often, a one-unit play compared to a five-unit play is in reference to a bettor's confidence.

If you're not a serious bettor, units aren't a major deal because you can go into a sportsbook with a set amount of money and bet it all in one night.

How are units used in the betting world?

Either that or the bettor with a 4-6 record was betting on a lot of underdogs a
